

What is a Play-based Screening?

In the attempt to make the screening process less intimidating and more meaningful for the child and parent, we, at District 200, use a play-based approach. Gauging the child's comfort level, team members use the natural structure of play to gather necessary developmental information. Parents are able to begin the screening process by playing with their child while the clinicians observe this parent-child interaction.